

MAGIC GARDEN

Once upon a time in the magic garden lived a little girl named Aurora. Magical plants grew in this garden. Aurora took care of the garden and took care of the plants, fertilized them with magical pollen. The girl's garden was visited by people in need of help.

One day, two people came to the magic garden with their child named Caroline. Their daughter had a very rare disease. Unfortunately, no medications helped. Aurora took the family for a walk in the garden. There she found a suitable plant. She gave it to the girl's parents saying: "Take care of this flower, and when it blooms, your daughter will recover."

It was a beautiful sunny day. Aurora was walking around the garden. A poor man approached her. He told her about his life. He had a wife and four children. The man lost his job and could not support his family. They became very poor. Aurora gave the man a flower. She said that with each day the plant grew, their financial situation would improve.

The man visited the girl after a few weeks and thanked her very much. When the plant grew up, he got a new job. He was appreciated and quickly got a raise. His wife won a large amount of money in a contest and they were able to buy a new, large house. Aurora was pleased and wished the man good luck.

One day, children from the orphanage came for a trip to the magic garden.

They were running around the garden. They were very happy. Every child received a magic flower. It turned out that when the flowers began to bloom all children received loving parents. They could move to new, cosy and loving homes.

The beauty of the magic garden was admired by everyone who visited it. However, the most important thing was that all those gifted with magical plants were happy, healthy and delighted. They were filled with joy and love. Maybe you will visit the magic garden one day?

Zosia Macholak, 8

